

Eagles Down Berea 77-59 In Final Game

The Morehead Eagles clinched their regular basketball season last Monday night with a 77-59 victory over Berea. This season's victory gave Morehead a total of 10 wins for the season, and clinched a winning streak begun in the last half of the season.

The Eagles set the pace for the entire game except for the opening seconds. Center Eddie Morehead, with a total of 20 points for the game, and Don Miller, veteran guard playing his last home game, racking up 10 points, led the winners in scoring. Boyd Rogers, a forward, scored eight for Berea with 14 markers.

On Feb. 18, Morehead 65. In their February 18 game with Union, the Eagles came out with the low end of a 40-48 decision. Although guard Don Whitehouse took scoring honors for the game with 23 points, Union's more consistent scoring piled up a higher total than the Eagles. Harold Cole, Union forward, was top Union scorer with 18 tallies.

Morehead 74, Georgetown 49. The Eagles' winning score of 74-49 over Georgetown in their February 11 home game, was impressive considering that they had lost to the same team earlier in the season. The Eagles gained a lead early in the first period and held it through to the end of the game.

High scorer for the evening was Watkins, Morehead forward, who bucketed four field goals and six free throws.

Language Department Gets New Instructional Records

The language department has recently acquired a number of instructional recordings designed to teach languages by the listen-and-speak method, according to Maria Bizzoni, language professor.

The records, which are accessible at all times to language students, are the same as those which were used by the United States armed services for soldiers in foreign countries during World War II.

New Records For Juke Box

Fifteen new records, chosen by the Crescendo Club, have been placed in the juke box in the grill. In the future new records are to be added at the rate of five per month, and are to be purchased with funds from the operation of the juke box.

Fluttering Eagles Fly Higher Toward Season's Finish

By Bob Warwick

The Eagles got off to a slow start, but showed constant improvement throughout the season to finish in good form. Their victory over Marshall at Huntington, is something the Eagles and Coach Johnson may be proud of, for it is not often that the Big Green is defeated on their home floor. The final game here, when Morehead walloped Berea 77 to 59, brought a nice finish to Don Miller's playing career on the Morehead floor.

Eddie Morehead and Don earned 36 points between them, Eddie scoring 20 and Don 16.

Don has been an inspiration to his team-mates for the past two years. Through his hard play and determination, he has spurred the Eagles to many victories. His efforts have been limited because of a heart condition, but you would have to look far and wide for a man with a greater fighting heart. And for a little man Don got more than his share of rebounds. He was all-OVC last year, and should be a cinch for it this year.

Vet's Village and The Ramblers continue to dominate intramural basketball at the completion of the fourth round of play. These two top teams have never met on the floor, due to the cancelling of the game in the second round. When they do meet, the game is sure to be one of the best of the round. The Ramblers, the four clubs that will battle it out in the tournament, are looking the round robin now being played, will be the Ramblers, Vet's Village, the Bonhunks, and the Newman Club.

These boys are providing most any type of basketball the fans want to see. If you like high-score games you can witness that as the Ramblers have scored as many as 100 points in a single game. If you want to watch good defensive ball and possession ball-playing, the Vet's Village team can furnish that, as they proved in their last game with the Bonhunks, winning 45 to 18, and freezing the ball in the last quarter. And if you enjoy watching managers, come on over and see Chig Bush, coach of the Vet's Village team. Chig, who has a limited amount of help, is not to lose what he has in the rough schedule ahead. One consolation: when a man's hair is gone, he can always pull on a towel or a necktie.

Senior Cage Star Don Miller Receives Award At Final Game

Don Miller, senior basketball star, played his last game for Morehead a week ago Monday night, and received a token of recognition in a special half-time ceremony. He was presented with a $100 war bond by Roger Cantrell, local resident, on behalf of members of the Eagles team and a group of Morehead citizens.

Don, a veteran guard, helped make his final game a victory for the Eagles. The game was played against Berea in the gymnasium here, and wound up the regular season for Morehead. According to Coach Ellis Johnson, Miller is "one of the finest boys we've had in basketball here." He is a good student as well as a good team member.

Johnson said that senior Miller made the honor roll.

Last year, Miller was named the all-Ohio Valley Conference basketball team.

Radio Panel Approves Athletic Scholarships, Competition

Athletic scholarships make it possible for many students to attend college who would be unable to do so otherwise, and such scholarships do not alter their amateur status, it was agreed upon by a panel of Kentucky college educators during recent radio broadcasts of a current series of panel discussions. Including Morehead's president Charles R. Spain, also reached the conclusion that competition along academic lines cannot replace intercollegiate competition in sports.

The recorded programs are presented over a state-wide network by the Reynolds Metals Co. as a public service on behalf of Kentucky sports. The panelists of presidents of various Kentucky colleges, and is moderated by Keen Johnson, vice president of the sponsoring company. The members of the panel were in general agreement with the opinion of Dr. Spain, who said, "There is no doubt that athletic scholarships make possible college attendance for many boys who could not otherwise attend."

Support for the practice of awarding athletic scholarships was given by the University of Kentucky's president H. L. Donovan. "We give scholarships to students who excel in music, dramatics, and stock judging," he said. "I believe that boy who is an excellent football or basketball player should likewise receive a scholarship recognizing his special abilities."

A plea for more scholarships in general was made by Paul Garrett, president of Western Kentucky State College. "I have years of experience I have each year," he said, "to tell poor students, eager for a college education, that I have no further job or scholarships. We of the colleges challenge you who can afford it to provide the money; we will find the needy student."

The question of the definition of amateurism was prompted by a controversy which developed this winter between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association, according to moderator Johnson.

Opinion Poll

Draft Deferment Of Students Is Controversial Issue, Poll Shows

By Mabel Howard

Millitary deferment of college students is a controversial subject on the campus, according to a poll taken last week of 35 students. The majority, however, (and the percentage was considerably higher among the men than among the women) believed that there should be such deferment.

According to the draft deferment law, college students with good academic records and aptitudes are permitted, upon application, to be deferred from military service to complete their college work before entering military service.

Of those who voted in favor of such deferment, a small majority believed that college deferment should be granted on a case-by-case basis, but some indicated that they felt it was the only way to get the best of both worlds—academic and military training.

Those who voted in favor of such deferment were asked to indicate the reasons for their decision. The most common reasons given were:

1. Do you think college students of draft age should be deferred because of academic standing? Yes—50; No—30.
2. Will the deferment of students of higher standing promote better leadership in later years? Yes—50; No—30.
3. Is this system of deferment democratic? Yes—37; No—40.
4. Should this system apply to A. upper classmen or B. college students as a whole? A—21; B—34; Neither—20.
5. Would non-college boys be justified in resenting this deferment of college boys? Yes—60; No—19.
6. Do you believe that there is too much opportunity for local draft boards to be influenced by personal considerations in granting deferments to college boys? Yes—72; No—13.
7. Have you at all times received college deferment? Yes—4.
8. Have you applied for it? Yes—4.
9. Do you intend to apply for deferment? Yes—10.

George Ann Barker Crowned Queen Of Sweethearts Ball

Queen of the annual Sweethearts Ball held a week ago Saturday evening was George Ann Barker. Miss Barker and her Beau, Frank Bloch, were chosen by popular vote of the student body.

Though the weather was a mixture of sun and rain, approximately 75 couples came to enjoy the dancing, the Valentine decorations, and the music by Jim Andy Caudill and his 11 piece orchestra. The semi-formal dance, sponsored by the Myrtle Club, was held in the college gymnasium.

Attendees to the Queen and Beau were Cozette Phillips, Peggy Wilson, Barbara Elyden, Ray Lockhart, Joe Corbett, Clinton Hickman, David Bingham and Jess Pugh.

The Queen and Beau were crowned during an intermission by President Charles R. Spain. After the crowning the orchestra played one dance for the Queen, the Beau and the attendant before the ball was resumed.

Education Is Way Of Life, Owsley Says; Job Training Only Part Of College Intent

Dr. William Owsley, professor of biology, was a member of the panel which discussed "Why College?" last month as part of the freshman orientation program.

Dr. Owsley received his B.S. and A.M. degrees from West Virginia College (Kentucky) and his Ph.D. from Ohio State University. He has been at Morehead since 1938. This article is the fourth of a series.

By Dr. William Owsley

Like Christianity, education is a way of life. In the Christian we see life in its highest expression of morality, love of mankind, and attitude toward God. In the educated we see life in its fullest employment of knowledge of self and knowledge of the world.

Christianity and education must not be thought of as separate ways of life. For every Christian is a student and every student is a Christian. We are to be religious in our life, and we are to be educated in our life. We are to be moral in our life, and we are to be intelligent in our life. We are to be loving in our life, and we are to be wise in our life. We are to be good in our life, and we are to be beautiful in our life. We are to be happy in our life, and we are to be successful in our life. We are to be free in our life, and we are to be powerful in our life. We are to be true in our life, and we are to be brave in our life. We are to be just in our life, and we are to be merciful in our life. We are to be kind in our life, and we are to be gentle in our life. We are to be patient in our life, and we are to be humble in our life. We are to be faithful in our life, and we are to be obedient in our life. We are to be diligent in our life, and we are to be industrious in our life. We are to be energetic in our life, and we are to be persistent in our life. We are to be cheerful in our life, and we are to be optimistic in our life. We are to be confident in our life, and we are to be courageous in our life. We are to be strong in our life, and we are to be resilient in our life. We are to be healthy in our life, and we are to be happy in our life. We are to be whole in our life, and we are to be complete in our life. We are to be perfect in our life, and we are to be perfect in our life.

As there are many people throughout the world who are not Christians, so there are many people who are not educated. We must constantly grow in both these areas of life. As we continue in Christian living we continually attain new spiritual insights and ideals; and as we continue our education we are constantly adding to our store of knowledge, constructing a new set of ideals and standards for living, and developing our philosophy of life.

If we see education as a way of life, we realize a college education is necessary for the fulfillment of that way of life. Each year, we attend school and add a proportionate amount to our accumulation of knowledge and our subsequent use and enjoyment of it in our daily living, but when we enter college, we are at the point where we must make a choice of our relation to and our duties in society. It is a time that we become more interested in the physical, economic, and social forces that control us. We are at the point where we must make a choice of and prepare ourselves for a vocation. It is a time when we become more independent of direct parental influences and start molding patterns of our lives for ourselves. It is because of these awakenings and changes

The AAUW sales are under the direction of members Mrs. W. H. Rice, home economics instructor at Breckinridge Training School, and Mrs. Naomi Claypool, head of the college's art department. The sale was initiated 13 years ago by Mrs. Claypool, but the appointment of an art supervisor was included only recently in the art program plan.

This year the AAUW sale netted a little over $250. The county has supplemented this fund by buying crayons and d-c colored chalk, and the Lay Clay Products Company donated clay. Even so, the materials which are available to Miss Gibson and her pupils are only the barest essentials.

Even with these few materials, and "every creative" work is done by the children, according to Mrs. Claypool. "There is much talent right here in Rowan County, and it shows up when the right kind of instruction is provided," she said.

Miss Gibson is from Neen, Ky. She is a member of the Beaux Arts Club.

of attitude that college becomes such a significant part of our education and why its relative importance is so great in our total education.

Education as a way of life has many aspects. It is concerned with our vocations, our writing, thinking and speaking, our creative efforts, our use of our leisure time, and our enjoyment of life as a whole.

Of the many values received from education, we are prone to associate college primarily with studying for a vocation, and that is partially or entirely right according to our viewpoint. If we look upon a college education simply as a tool for obtaining a lucrative position with no regard for other benefits to be derived from our time spent in college, then our attitude is wrong. Too frequently we hear a student say, "I'm not interested in this subject and I'll never use it in the work I am going to do." It is doubtful if such a student is going to gain what he should from college and whether he is going to make too great a contribution to the vocation he has chosen.

On the other hand, if we think of college as preparation for life, then we are preparing for our vocation regardless of what our vocation might be. There are many vocations for which a college degree is not a prerequisite, but certainly in many of these, individuals with a college education could do more for themselves and their work. Wrongly do we point the finger of scorn at anyone with a college degree who is doing the same work as non-college men. That is like the formerly held attitude that an education was wasted on any girl who married and became merely a mother and housewife. A college education can be a preparation for a vocation.

gardless as to whether or not it is ranked in the professional class.

In addition to training for a vocation, there are many other ways in which college prepares us for our way of life. In the various fields of subject matter we gain knowledge of ourselves and world in which we live that enables us to live healthier, happier and more useful lives. We learn of the things which have produced our great civilization and of our rights, relationships and responsibilities in the society and civilization of today. We come into contact with and make a part of us the great works of art, music and literature that lift us above the ordinary affairs of life and give us more enjoyable use of our leisure time.

Above all, during our college years we build a firm foundation for our years of education which necessarily come after we leave college if we follow education as a way of life.
